

The Benefits of Contracting Through Allyance

How Allyance can make a difference

The Defence Industrial Strategy says greater use must be made of the specialist knowledge and skills available within the SME marketplace. It believes that by doing so, customers will benefit from increased levels of competition and the efficiency and flexibility that is often missing from bigger players.

Implementing this initiative implies that more complicated, multi-discipline projects will be broken down into smaller tasks for allocation to specialist organisations, instead of simply being handed over to larger "one size fits all" organisations as they have been previously.

While this may seem like an excellent idea in principle, the reality is that too many projects broken down into too many smaller pieces can be a real headache to manage. This is where Allyance provides a solution.

What we do

Allyance is a project management consultancy with a wide range of specialist partners carefully chosen for their technical knowledge and skills. It has the expertise to pull together dedicated industry specialists under one banner and manage a project seamlessly from start to finish.

Contracting through Allyance provides the peace of mind of knowing that all project management aspects will be handled by an experienced team, ensuring that deadlines are met, quality standards are adhered to and contracts are delivered. This guarantees a cost effective and efficient way of meeting the requirements of the Defence Industrial Strategy, but without the time-consuming and frustrating hassle of dealing with a myriad of small suppliers.

You have one project manager – Allyance does the rest.

Allyance's specific skill set

Our project management expertise includes:

- Sourcing a wide selection of contracted partner companies to provide the specialist skills
- Providing a single point of contact and acting as a portal to reach SMEs
- Allocation of tasks to the most appropriate specialist, monitoring progress and quality to ensure maximum customer satisfaction
- Co-ordination of multiple work streams to provide a seamless turnkey solution
- Management of all issues on behalf of the client
- Customer focused support

To find out more

Call Rick Hussey on 01865-327427 or visit www.allyance.co.uk